

A DAY WELL SPENT.

The Drive, the Lake and the Tabernacle Recital.

OUR DENVER FRIENDS PLEASED.

The Address of Welcome by Governor West, the Response and Other Speeches at Garfield Beach.

No better weather could have been desired than that which greeted the Colorado excursionists on awakening yesterday morning. The sun shone brightly and the air was just cool enough to be bracing. Notwithstanding the fatigue of the previous day, and the lateness in the hour of arriving, many of the members of the party were abroad at an early hour, evidently taking in some of the sights before they had taken in their breakfast.

At 9:30 the committee of arrangements and entertainment were promptly on hand at the chamber of commerce, and received orders from Chairman Trevelock to repair to the different hotels, take in charge all of the tourists who were desirous of going, and proceed to all points of interest in the city, as such could be visited in the two hours allotted for the drive. Ten minutes later the main streets were literally alive with drags, wagoons, carriages, buggies, phaetons and nearly everything else on wheels, each vehicle being well loaded with passengers. The first drive was made to the Temple block, where the buildings were inspected, and after that each vehicle was wheeled away in different directions. Nearly all, however, climbed the hills in and adjacent to the eighteenth ward. There were so many vehicles in so many different directions, that it would be impossible to give the views of all the visitors as they gazed at the city and valley stretched out before them from the surrounding eminences. A health reporter, however, was pressed into service, as a guide by Mr. Westfield, and the expressions of a dozen of our guests placed under his care, may be taken as a fair sample of the entire party. To say they were pleased is to put too small a value on the visit. "This almost makes me think of our night ride through the Utah and Salt Lake valleys," said one of the good souls from one of the elevated portions of the city. "The view is certainly one of a lifetime." There was one thing, however, that particularly struck the visitors and that was the many cottages home, each with its little green lawn and flower bed surrounded by trees and shrubs, and one expressed the idea when he said there seemed to be a fairyland among the smaller householders as to whom property should present the neatest appearance. In the time allotted for the drive, and which was necessarily shortened somewhat in view of the contemplated visit to Garfield Beach, it was, of course, impossible that the entire city could be covered, but it is safe to say the greater portion of the sights were visited. The excursionists were landed at the hotels, prepared at 1:30 for the run to Garfield.

The Tour to the Beach.

It would seem that our friends needed no second invitation, for by the hour named there were eleven cars well laden, and some few minutes later the train pulled out. There were many exclamations of surprise and pleasure during the journey, and distributed throughout each car were enough Salt Lakeers to answer such questions as might be put regarding the city, and it may be truthfully said that none were prepared for the glorious vision which burst upon their view as Black Rock was neared, and still less were they prepared for the appearance of the noblest of the coast, which was seen at its best yesterday. The lake was as unruffled as a sleeping angel, and reflected one of those charming pictures of color and beauty that the body of water. There was a sudden disembarking as the train stopped at the station, and nearly all wended their way to the pavilion, where an excellent lunch had preceded them. Only a few persons ventured in, but those who did so pronounced the bathing water a true treat, of a pleasant nature. Several excellent selections were given by the band, the visitors meanwhile drinking in the scene of beauty before them. Later, a number of the committee mounted the stand and the assembly was called to order.

The Speeches.

Governor West was the first speaker, and he delivered the address of welcome. He had been selected, he said, to give the sentiment of the people of this city, and the people of this territory, in reference to the visitors who are in our midst. No expression, however, that he might be able to give utterance to could express the feelings of this city toward their guests and visitors. You have built in Colorado a great community with large taken advantage of the natural wealth by which you were surrounded, and the result has been glory both to you and to the nation. It is a pleasure to meet such men, to have them come into our midst. We do not say that the sun here shines brighter, or that we have anything that you have not, but we do say that our mountains and valleys are full of wealth, and we wish to show you that it is not to make happy homes. You cannot feel that you are in a strange land, because even here you are surrounded by a familiarity to your own great states. We have all that civilization needs, and we want capital and brains to develop it. You receive from all our hearts a ready welcome. All that we can give you is a few days of pleasure, and we hope you will give us a few days of pleasure in return. We do not welcome you to this city alone, but to our broad and fertile territory. The reception committee at Provo last evening said that they found an echo in the heart of every resident in Utah. I have heard it said that although you could not see the reception at Provo, you heard it. (A voice.) "We did." And when you leave here, which will be all too soon, you will go to Ogden, and in advance of your arrival there I trust for you most cordial and most generous treatment and a most earnest welcome. They will do all they can to make your visit a pleasant one. I do not wish to weary you with a long talk; you will probably be taken to a great deal before you go away; you may hear something about a boom, and corner lots and inside property. If you do, rest assured that it is but an exuberance of hospitality—simply that you should hear familiar sounds in a strange land. (Laughter.) Come and see and remain with us if you will. It is not to any section that we in vite you.

A. C. BISHOP.

was loudly called for. He appeared, he said, as a citizen of Utah, and there many persons who were better able to respond to the royal welcome of Governor West. In behalf of the people of Colorado, however, I accept cheerfully the hand of welcome and the fellowship that has been planned beyond expression; they will have received a revelation that will stay with them, and they will never have a more glorious hope that they may at some time return—even if they do not decide to do so permanently. The people of the United States have not a proper appreciation of the great resources of this territory. Many look upon it as a nook in the mountain folds, with no chance to make a large city, let them come here and we have and they will find it a good place to live.

MR. PATTON.

of Pueblo, followed. I take great pleasure in expressing my appreciation of the treatment received at the hands of the Salt Lakeers. The reception has been the grandest I have ever met with. Our visit has been one of the most enjoyable of our lives. The grandeur and beauty of the mountains can scarcely be exceeded by the warmth of your welcome, which was beyond the expectations of any. Lay aside your differences, entirely for Salt Lake and all will be well with you.

BENNY W. LAWRENCE.

president of the chamber of commerce, followed in a pointed speech, which was well received. He called the attention of the visitors to the vast wealth of the territory, which was awaiting the touch of brains and capital. Our resources are endless, and our climate unequalled. We are willing to share them with our Colorado brethren. We want you to come here and help develop our resources.

PROFESSOR TOLK.

said he was only too pleased to express his opinion of this welcome from honest hearts, and referred in a feeling manner to the reception of the previous evening at Provo. This is an occasion that will long be remembered. Never in my life have I seen a grander exhibition of a cordial welcome. This great gathering of a great period in the history of Utah. No one man could have successfully undertaken the task of bringing out such an excursion unless the public mind was ripe for it.

At the conclusion of the professor's address, there were loud calls for "Sloan."

In response,

ROBERT W. SLOAN.

said: "It is an unexpected pleasure for me to be called up. I want to say, thanks to the committee, the intelligence, the energy of the men who inaugurated the excursion and carried it out so successfully. (Applause.) It is no little work. I do not propose to disparage with other communities have done with their limited resources, but I do say that in no other country, under the sun of the same area can be found as many natural resources as exist within the confines of Utah."

At the Salt Works.

Soon after the speeches, the excursionists boarded the train and were taken to the works of the Inland Salt company at Saltair, where a short time was pleasantly employed in inspecting the buildings and their surroundings, after which the party returned to this city, arriving here at about 6 o'clock.

At the Tabernacle.

There was not the rush at the Tabernacle seen at the previous occasion, but the excursionists were on time, and when they were all seated the lower part of the building was fairly filled, the gallery about three-fourths seated. President A. M. Cannon called the audience to order and also announced that the Salt Lake & Port Douglas railroad would run a special complimentary train over their line this morning for the accommodation of the tourists, and that a lunch would be ready for them at Wagner's. The proceedings were then opened with prayer by Bishop Whitney, who made a graceful mention of the strangers within our gates, and the concert followed. The main thing to the eyes and ears of the visitors was, of course, the organ and many were the exclamations of admiration and astonishment which rose as Prof. Dayner, seated out with his grand organ. Prof. Dayner was received with hearty applause, many of the Denverites apparently remembering his recent achievements on this same grand organ in their city. The programme, besides the organ selections, was almost as had been announced in the Herald, and consisted of "Nazareth," by M. J. Thomas; Cavatina (Half), by Mr. Wolfe; "Bliss Forever Past," by Miss Dean; "When the Swallows," by Messrs. Easton, Whitney, Goddard and Spencer, and "Hallelujah Chorus," by the choir. Mr. Wolfe had a double encore of the stormiest character, and he gave "Home, Sweet Home" and "The Swanee River." Miss Dean, whose voice was loud and clear, sang "The Swanee River" and "The Swanee River." The audience showed some signs of weariness towards the close, and a number went out, as the interior began to warm up again. The gates outside had been closed, however, to prevent the audience from being disturbed by late comers, and many had to wait about the pews for some time. The programme was much more enjoyable on account of its being shortened. It was still one-fourth too long to be entirely popular, however, and the fact that the excursionists were in the future limit them to one hour. With the character of our audiences, too, there is no need of the organ numbers being doubled; though it is a pity that the organ, recital, the instrumentalists could have ample opportunity by giving the A. without the H. During the evening, Judge Batten took the stand and acknowledged with thanks the invitation of the Salt Lake & Port Douglas railroad, but regretted that they would be forced to decline it, as under their arrangements with the railroad company they were obliged to go on to Ogden at 6 o'clock this morning.

Resolution.

The excursionists held a meeting last night and appointed a committee to draft a set of resolutions expressing their appreciation of the efforts made by the residents of Salt Lake city to entertain them while in the city. The committee met at the Cullen and drafted resolutions as follows: We, the excursionists from Colorado and six other states, who are in your midst, to-day a perfect enjoyment, do most sincerely
